Definition

Regularly scheduled overtime work means overtime work that is part of an employee's regularly scheduled administrative workweek. In order to be regularly scheduled, overtime work must be specific as to the employee(s), the day(s), hour(s), and time to be worked and must be scheduled no later than midnight Saturday of the week before it is to be performed.

Approving Officials

Responsible officials who are delegated authority to approve tours of duty are authorized to approve tours of duty that include periods of regularly scheduled overtime. (Regularly scheduled overtime cannot be taken as compensatory time, but must be paid as overtime.)

Exception: Employees on flexible work schedules may, at their option, request compensatory time for regularly scheduled and irregular or occasional overtime work.

Approval is subject to the availability of funds and must be limited to situations:

Criteria for Approval

- When regularly scheduled overtime is necessary to meet program needs, or
Which meet the following conditions:
- The hours of work performed by the employee are fixed as the hours during which the private establishment is in operation; and
- The employee is assigned primarily to an establishment at which he/she must remain on duty throughout the hours of the establishment's operations.

When regularly scheduled overtime is authorized, the official approving such tours will maintain a record (e.g., on the T&A log) that includes the following:

Required
Records

- The number, class, and grade of the employees involved;
- Proposed working schedule by hours of the day and days of the week;
- Justification for exceeding the usual workweek, including reasons why it would not be practical to hire additional personnel for the work;
- Probable duration of the overtime work; and
- Statement of availability of funds for the purpose.

The record is to be maintained locally and must be kept available as source data for any reports requested by USDA, Office of Human Resource Management, or outside agencies.

Note: Regularly scheduled overtime generally is not applicable to the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area. Check with the servicing personnel office if it becomes necessary to consider regular work beyond the 40 hour workweek.

Irregular and Occasional Overtime Work

If the supervisor does not know of the requirement for additional work until the administrative workweek has already begun or does not know which employee should have his/her tour rescheduled, he/she may require an employee to perform the work in addition to his/her regularly scheduled tour of duty. This additional work would be irregular or occasional overtime work.

Overtime hours are hours of work in excess of the basic work requirement, officially ordered and approved, in advance, by management. Employees are entitled to overtime pay for overtime work in accordance with applicable provisions of law.
